

RBS were retained by Faith to design and install all the offices required in the shell of their new two-storey building in north London. We recommended a combination of glazed and solid partitioning and Beech doors to allow both privacy where required whilst retaining a light and spacious ambience. Glass sections were centrally glazed with white PVC, bead framed directly to the floor and ceiling with white powder-coated aluminium. The Directors office was double glazed for additional privacy. Toughened glass screens were installed to the break-out areas.
